It is recognized that the attached paper attempts to cover a great deal of ground in a relatively few pages. We would suggest several additions:

STAT

a. The role of Mr. [redacted]

[redacted], who really STAT developed the geographical concept of recruitment in the early 1950's, is not developed.

b. A list of the Chiefs of Recruitment, with their dates of service would seem to be in order.

c. Many of the items listed under "Sources" lack dates of interview or documents.

We hope that we may soon see this paper in its final form, at which time it should bear the name of the author, of course.

We have reviewed with interest your draft monograph on the "Second Career Counseling Program." This seems to be a quite complete coverage. In a great many places reference is made to Agency documents (i. e., page 5 - ER 10-608; page 26 - last paragraph "According to official Agency documents. . ." etc.) which should appear as a source appendix to the basic paper.

Sorry that it has taken us so long to review this, but do hope to see it in finished form shortly.

We have reviewed the paper on Fitness Reporting in CIA -- 1947 - 1968. We must confess that we find the paper to be more in the context of a term paper than a "history"; it would seem that a more objective paper, with less projection of the writer's personal conclusions should be possible.

We have noted a few comments and other points in the margin of the draft and anticipate that the paper will be further reviewed within the Office of Personnel before its approval by the Director of Personnel in its final form for official publication.
